"Alone we can do so little. Together we can do so much."
Helen Keller

Keller was an American educator who overcame the adversity of being blind and deaf to become one of the 20th century's leading humanitarians.

What should you do if you see a service animal?

Service animals are super cute and you may want to run up to one and pet or cuddle with it. Or maybe you want to talk to it or take a picture to show your friends. However, service animals are working and performing a very important job! Distracting them can be dangerous and could cause the handler to get hurt.

What you should do:

- Admire from a distance
- Talk to the person, not the dog
- Be respectful
- Tell your friends to do the same

Every living thing deserves to walk through the door of opportunity to live their dreams!

How could you accommodate these different needs?
